Who's who in the cast

ROBERT L. SCRIBNER, the director, joined the faculty of Oglethorpe in 1948 in the history department. Although this is his first direction of the Players, he has helped us in the past countless times by technical assistance.

Although he is a newcomer to the Oglethorpe stage, it was only natural that EUGENE O'BRIEN (Mortimer), who by all appearances could very well be a dramatic critic, should take time from his writing and painting to add his dramatic talent to the Players.

It seems rather appropriate that JANE COWART (Martha) and JO FUREY (Abby), who appeared for the first time at Oglethorpe as two zany sisters in LADIES IN RETIREMENT, are now for the last time together again cast as two mad sisters. In the intervening plays they have starred as mother and daughter, sane sisters, and accomplished gin rummy players.

Jane, a senior, has served for two years on the business staff, while Jo, a junior, is at present the president of the Players.

ARSENIC AND OLD LACE is the fourth consecutive play in which O. K. SHEFFIELD, JR., (Teddy) has sported a bristling moustache, since he initiated his acting career at Oglethorpe in LIGHT UP THE SKY and from behind these moustaches have come many fine performances.

With only previous business and staging experience at Oglethorpe, JEANNE KAST (Elaine) imparts to her character all the ingredients for a most enjoyable performance.

DAVID FISCHER (Dr. Einstein) earned his reputation as a character actor by his outstanding work with minor roles in two previous plays. This experience along with his ability enables him to portray the "surgeon of great distinction" delightfully.

AVA HART (Elaine), remembered as the colored maid in YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU and more recently as the ingenue in LABURNUM GROVE, again proves her versatility as an actress by her excellent rendition of Elaine.

Oglethorpe's dynamic delegate from Brooklyn, New York, SHELLY FLEITMAN (Jonathan), becoming a Thespian for the first time, adds another accomplishment to his already long list of successful endeavors with his realistic interpretation of Jonathan.
